Trustwave

Overview

Trustwave is headquartered in Illinois, U.S. It has more than 1,000 employees across 12 offices in six countries. Trustwave is a pure-play cybersecurity service provider with over 25 years of experience. It provides tailored consulting engagements and flexible managed services, including cyber advisory, architecture and integration, security maturity, supply chain risk, cloud security, DFIR, vulnerability and penetration testing, MSS, managed detection and response, co-managed SIEM, e-mail security, database security and advanced threat hunting services.

Strengths

Proactive threat intelligence:

Trustwave combines automation and a human-driven threat-hunting approach. Its experts have deep expertise in incident response, digital forensics, malware analysis and threat intelligence. It uses MITRE-aligned behavioural-based threat-hunting methodology and the proprietary Trustwave SpiderLabs® platform, which provides actionable insights derived from multiple data sources.

Enhanced MDR service: Trustwave centres its MDR service around its Trustwave Fusion platform. It is a robust cloud-native platform that provides enterprises with a unified view and complete visibility across multicloud and IoT environments. Its AI and ML modules and threat intelligence from the SpiderLabs team provide advanced detection and response. The platform integrates well with other security tools in the client's environment, accelerating time to value.

Value-added services: Security Colony is Trustwave's knowledge library, available for its MDR clients as a bundled offering based on the subscription and a basic free version. Trustwave Security Colony empowers clients with valuable resources from the company's consulting engagements, providing effective solutions to enterprise challenges, making it a crucial asset. Trustwave also provides webinars, executive engagements and threat briefings for selected customers.

Caution

In early 2024, Trustwave was acquired by MC² Security Fund, a private equity firm focused on growth advisory and investments in the security industry and an affiliate of the Chertoff Group. It should capitalize on this acquisition to open new accounts in the UK, especially in the public sector.
